Arbonne International scam- The Real Truth behind the Failure

If you reading this article, you either an Arbonne International distributor or seeking to become a distributor and wondering whether it's a scam. First let's get the record straight, most mlm companies are usually viewed as scam for the simple reason of people trying to make money and just are not able to. Understand that I'm in no way affiliated with Arbonne International; however I don't believe for one second that Arbonne international is a scam.

Unfortunately, what most fail to see is that there are several distributors who has made and still making millions with Arbonne. I'm pretty sure that the people that are successful with Arbonne are not complaining about it being a scam and usually the one that tried and fail that complain about how they were scammed.

If Arbonne is not a Scam than what is it?

Arbonne International came into existence in 1975 when an entrepreneur and a group of leading bio-chemists, biologist, and herbalist began to research and develop skin care products. Since then, the company has grown exponentially and has added several different lines of products to their collections.

The company used a direct sales model which promotes word of mouth marketing type advertising. By using this model, it gives their distributors the opportunity to showcase their products and have their own personal home based business without expensive franchise fees. Anyone looking to get started with Arbonne can invest as little as $109.

Arbonne International Scam- why People Fail?

I remember several years back when I initially got started in an mlm company. I was excited, I was told that it would be easy to sign people, just talk to my friends and family and everyone else I knew and they would sign up. Unfortunately that did not happen, and what I did not realize back then was mlm business is about sales and marketing business. As an Arbonne representative, you can either sell the skin care products or the MLM opportunity but either way your marketing efforts are required. This MLM profession is far beyond just selling products, this is a marketing and people business. It is much easier for people to quit and not learn than to actually put forth the effort to learn.

Arbonne International- How to Succeed

Since we now know that Arbonne International is no scam. The only thing that is standing between you and those who succeed is your understanding of marketing. Although marketing offline still works, you will be limited as to the number of people you'll be able to reach. It is good to have a primary way of marketing online through an attraction marketing system that can help you generate leads. When you do this, you will always have high quality of interested prospects that will contact you about your Arbonne business.
